

The Daily Courant.

Thursday, December 18. 1718.

London, December 18.

Yesterday arrived two Mails from Holland, and a Mail from France.

From the Amst. Gazette, dated Dec. 20.

Constantinople, September 21.

MR. Stanyan, Ambassadour of his Britannick Majesty at the Ottoman Porte, arrived here at the Beginning of last Month, after having sojourn'd some Time in the Camp of the Grand Vizier near Sophia. Count Collyer, Ambassadour of the States General, is arriv'd from Passarowitz at Adrianople, from whence he is suddenly expected here. The Grand Seigneur, after he had been for some time in Uncertainty, whether he should pass his Winter at Adrianople, or come hither, has at last taken the Resolution to return to this City. Prince Ragotski is lodg'd in a Village three Leagues from this City, near the Black Gate. The Porte has granted him a Ducats a Day, for the Maintenance of himself and Retinue which consists of 200 Persons, among whom are many Hungarian Officers. Altho' the Porte treats him well enough, 'tis said he is discontented, and has intimated to the Visier, that he did not intend to tarry long in this Country. The Waywode of Wallachia of the Family of Cordato, who was held Prisoner with the Imperialists as long as the War lasted, is to be restored to that Principality, to the great Dissatisfaction of his Brother, who possess'd that Dignity provisionally during the other's Imprisonment, and hoped to be continu'd in it.

Extract of a Letter of Captain Cornwallis on board Down, dated at Gibraltar Oct. 24. "A Basia, accompanied with three Masters of English Ships, Captives, has been dispatch'd to Tetuan, with Full Powers to treat of Peace; which is what has been communicated to me by that Basia. After having read the Letter, I sent a Copy of it to Sir George Byng. By these Letters, and by the Examination of the Persons who brought them, I have all reason to believe, that the Moors are very sincere in their Intentions hereupon. I wrote to the Basia to let him know that I had sent his Letter to the Admiral, but that I having no Order to treat, or any other Commission than to cruise against the Moorish Ships with the Squadron I command, the Admiral would no doubt conduct this Affair to a Conclusion as soon as possible. I have left the Original Letters of the Basia here, with Orders to Captain Rowley, Commander of the Biddiford, who is expected here very suddenly from Port Mahon, to sail again immediately to carry the said Letters to the Admiral; and in the mean Time I have sent Copies of them to Leghorn and Genoa.

Vienna, Dec. 7. 'Tis said the Dispatches the Turkish Aga has brought, relate to the Kan of the Tartar's bringing an Army of 100000 Men into the Field, in order to attack the Czar; whereof the Porte thinks fit to give the Emperour Knowledge, to take from him all Suspicion on that Account. There is Advice from Rome, that the Pope is dangerously ill of a Dropsy.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated Dec. 23.

Vienna, Dec. 10. The Emperour has declar'd the Duke of Savoy King of Sardignia, and the Marquis de St. Thomas has had Audience of his Imperial Majesty in the Quality of Ambassadour of his Majesty. Letters from Melazzo say, that since the Arrival of the Reinforcements, the Imperialists are so strong that it will be impossible for the Spaniards to take the Place; and on the contrary, 'tis not doubted they will speedily retire. They write from Poland, that the Czar has promised to withdraw his Troops from Poland forthwith.

From the Amst. Gazette, dated Dec. 10. The Turkish Aga has brought Ratification of the Agreement made concerning the Limits on the Frontiers, and desires to have that of the Emperour's. 'Tis said he endeavours to learn, whether our Court be dispos'd to assist in driving the Muscovites out of Poland.

Warsaw, Dec. 10. On Wednesday Evening the King of Poland came hither, accompanied with many of the Nobility; and the Pope's Nuncio, with more of the Nobility, are expected to Morrow.

Copenhagen, Dec. 13. Our last Transport is safely arriv'd in Norway.

Amsterdam, Dec. 23. Upon my Lord Cadogan's representing, that a great Number of Merchant-ships, loaden with all sorts of Naval and Warlike Stores, were bound for Spain under the Convoy of four Men of War, Orders are given from the Admiralty here to the Commander of the Convoy, not to take one Ship under his Care that has any Naval or Warlike Stores on board; and the Commanders of all the Merchant-ships have also received Orders to unload such Stores. The Deputies of this Town went from hence Yesterday, in Order to their assembling this Day at the Hague, and it is generally believ'd here, that they will accede to the Quadruple Alliance.
